

Experience the Starting Nine at the Baseball Hall of Fame

Nine More Reasons to Make That Trip to Cooperstown

Tucked away in the rolling hills of Upstate New York is an American history museum unlike any other – a must-see destination for the entire family. It's the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, which has given everyone another reason to visit with the debut of its Starting Nine experience.

The Museum recently introduced a new way for the whole family to enjoy its visit. Starting Nine is a team-themed experience that highlights nine amazing pieces for each MLB team among the vast collection of tens of thousands of treasured artifacts preserved in Cooperstown. You don't even have to be a dedicated baseball fan to have fun with this hunt through the Museum.

In Game Six of the 1993 World Series, Blue Jays right fielder Joe Carter swung this bat for a dramatic ninth-inning three-run home run, simultaneously ending the game and giving Toronto their second straight World Championship title.

Yogi Berra's Glove

With a mix of iconic moments and items that will surprise you, the Baseball Hall of Fame Starting Nine is a limited-time experience that covers all the bases and creates an immersive Museum experience. Artifacts include the mitt Yankees legend Yogi Berra used to catch the only perfect game in postseason history. The Starting Nine experience also has, the bat Carlton Fisk used to club his famous World Series home run that he “waved fair” for the Red Sox in 1975, a baseball used by Philadelphia pitcher Roy Halladay in his 2010 perfect game and Mets legend Tom Seaver’s cap worn in 1970 as he set a then-record for strikeouts in a game.

Let's Go

The journey to this quiet corner of Upstate New York is part of that experience, filled with beautiful views and the promise of great times spent on the road with family and friends. Cooperstown is just about 40 minutes off the New York State Thruway, but if ever there was a reason to take the road less traveled, this is it. So, pack up the car and plan to tack an extra hour or two onto your journey by taking scenic routes that come from every direction.

Once you arrive, Cooperstown is a small-town village with the feel of a Norman Rockwell portrait, complete with classic storefronts, cozy cafes and, of course, the baseball shrine that made it famous. What Cooperstown has to offer is as varied as its visitors: Unique museums, world-class arts and a wide array of craft beverages and restaurants come together in this Upstate oasis of Americana and adventure.
